Hormone Therapy Options

Many hormone therapy products exist on the commercial market to help with symptom management. These products typically contain hormones that are synthetically modified or derived from an animal source (i.e. Premarin, Prempro, Estrace).

Bioidentical hormones or BHRT are the exact same structure as the natural hormones found in the human body.

Bioidentical hormones are the exact same structure as the natural hormones found in the human body. The primary hormone of importance in females is estrogen, which exists in three different forms in the body: estrone (E1), estradiol (E2), estriol (E3). Other important hormones include progesterone (P4), testosterone, and dehydroepiandrosterone (DHEA).

These substances may help restore natural balance in the body and may help alleviate chronic symptoms arising from imbalance.

How McMahan Pharmacy Helps

By working with your medical provider, McMahan Compounding Pharmacy can create various compounded bioidentical hormone replacement formulations that may include any combination E1, E2, E3, P4, DHEA, and/or testosterone to help manage your symptoms.

Complete medical histories will be taken and evaluated to create a product that will help you manage any issues you might be experiencing.

The amount of these hormones will be limited to mimic how they naturally exist in your body to ensure safety.

Formulation examples include topical and vaginal creams, oral capsules, and orally dissolving or sublingual tablets.

With sufficient monitoring, formulations can be adjusted to help relieve your most bothersome symptoms
